By Jack C. Ventimiglia

MADISON — The list of 10 most wanted criminals in St. Louis was reduced by one early Friday morning.

Standard police procedure and a good memory resulted in the arrest of Charles L. Goodson, 28, of 5551 Ashland Ave., St. Louis.

GOODSON was wanted in St. Louis on charges of unlawful use of a weapon and promoting prostitution.

He was arrested at Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza at 3:47 a.m. Friday after being observed in a gray Hornet, parked among the trucks, by Madison Patrolman Steven E. Shelby.

After seeing a black woman run toward the car, Shelby turned on his lights and began questioning the driver, Lee Andre Miller, 28, and a passenger who identified himself as Darris L. Anderson, 29.

PATROLMAN Steve Skoklo arrived and identified Anderson as being Goodson, the man wanted by St. Louis police.

Goodson was held for St. Louis police.

No charge was issued against Miller.

May miss last chance

By Dave Gosnell

GRANITE CITY — The District 9 Board of Education again could not agree on a replacement for Jerry McKeehan, who resigned in August.

The board was given a last chance at a special meeting on Saturday morning to agree on a replacement. The opportunity was given by Regional Superintendent of Schools Gene Briggs, who is now legally responsible for the selection because the board failed to appoint a new member before the 30-day legal deadline, which was on Thursday.

BRIGGS said an agreement by the board on Saturday would have "weighed heavily" on his selection. But Briggs will now interview candidates who were being considered by the board and will make the selection independently.

The board discussed the appointment of a member at three different meetings in executive session during a 30-day period. A majority of the board could not agree on a selection.

BRIGGS has 15 days to name a new member. He said he will make a selection before the 15 days pass.

Rink season threatened due to unrepairable part

GRANITE CITY — On the 20th anniversary of the Granite City Park District ice rink, the rink faces serious mechanical problems that threaten its operation this skating season.

The district was told in August that a key piece of machinery used in the ice-making process at the rink

Madison crossing being repaired

Representatives of Norfolk & Western Railway gave no positive response Monday as to when three train-auto crossings in Madison will be repaired. But repair work on two of them began Tuesday.

They initially were questioned after an inspection of the potentially hazardous crossings on Monday morning.

WHILE AVOIDING any immediate commitment to improvements, they gave further thought to it later in the day Monday and work was started here Tuesday morning.

Railroad crews began work on the crossing in the 1300 block of Grand Avenue, where large spikes were protruding above the surface.

There also was a mound on each side of the tracks where asphalt had been used for temporary repairs.

THE WORKMEN dug out the area Tuesday and began removing the unnecessary asphalt in preparation for creating a level approach on both sides of the tracks for auto and truck traffic.

Charles S. Christy, assistant to the St. Louis Terminal division engineer and William Jackson, roadmaster for the railroad, inspected the sites Monday with Mayor John Bellico and Superintendent of Streets Robbie Robbins.

Christy declined to answer questions after the tour, but told Bellico he would work with him on resolving the problem.

Also inspected were the crossing in the 1300 block of Madison Avenue, and the crossing in the 1300 block alley between Grand Avenue and State Street.

Repairs to the alley crossing were begun Tuesday in conjunction with the Grand Avenue crossing repairs nearby.

ALL THREE SITES were described as in bad shape and in need of immediate repair.

Christy did not agree that there is a serious problem on Madison Avenue, saying, "It's not too bad. The motorists are not slowing down to cross this section."

While standing at the site, a man walked over the western portion of the Madison Avenue crossing. By putting his full weight on the rubber padding between the rails at the crossing, he was able to depress the padding several inches.

Part of the rubber padding on the west side of the crossing has been damaged by traffic. The padding is depressed at a seam, with part of the black material sticking up. The citizen voiced concern that the raised area could catch a tire as a vehicle crossed.

DRAWING THE MOST attention was the section of tracks in the alley area, where rails were sagging and bent. Some who were present speculated that the problem could result in a derailment of train cars. The fear of chemical cars being derailed in the Quad City Area caused a resident, Frank Lisac, 1325 Grand Ave., Madison, to question the safety of the tracks.

Should a derailment occur with chemical cars, the spill could result in danger to those living in the vicinity, Lisac said.

Board member to fight court

ALTON — Moving functions to East St. Louis from the federal courthouse at Alton will be opposed at the Oct. 15 Madison County Board meeting.

The resolution to halt the move will be presented by attorney Bill Haine, of Alton, chairman of the board's judiciary committee. He plans to use the resolution to call on area members of the United States Senate and House to stop the consolidation.

Haine said he's received calls from Madison County residents who do not feel safe going into East St. Louis to act as jurors at that city's federal courthouse, where bankruptcy cases are handled. He said moving all the area's federal court functions to the city would make the situation worse.

"That place looks like downtown Beirut," Haine said of East St. Louis.

The outcome of court cases could be jeopardized if jurors who don't want to be in East St. Louis must go there, he said.

"YOU'RE going to have juries that want to get out of town by sunset," he said. "That may affect decisions."

Another reason for Haine's opposition is that Alton provided the land and street improvements to get the federal courthouse there in the 1960s. He said East St. Louis did nothing, but plans are to put all federal court buildings there.

The federal courthouse in Alton also houses offices for the Internal Revenue Service, and Social Security. Jurors in Alton and in the northern counties will have much longer drives if the move is approved, he said.

"FOR THE federal government to turn that (court building) into a partially used magistrate court is a waste of resources," Haine said. "The public still doesn't know what the move will mean, but citizens would oppose it if they did, he said."

It's going to hit the fan when all of them wake up and realize they have to go to East St. Louis," he said.

Man arrested in City Hall incident

GRANITE CITY — A man wanted for allegedly threatening a Granite City alderman at City Hall was arrested by police Thursday.

Joseph LeRoy Smith, 46, of 4761 Vincent St., was served two warrants by Granite City police Sept. 25 charging him with assault and disorderly conduct.

Smith followed 3rd Ward Alderman Paul Fisk out of a planning and zoning committee, held Sept. 17 in the second-floor courtroom at City Hall. Smith allegedly called Fisk profane names and threatened to hit him.

Fisk immediately called police, but Smith left the building before officers arrived.

The incident began as Smith was addressing the committee about problems he had with a mobile home he wanted to park on a lot near Fisk's home. Smith claimed Fisk bought the property in order to keep him from putting the mobile home there.

When Fisk tried to respond to Smith's comments, several aldermen and audience members at the meeting walked out of the room.

Fisk also walked out, with Smith following, and went into Mayor Von Dee Gruse's office, where the incident occurred.

Her musical career started at home at 6

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — One of Granite City's first families is a musical family, too. And a member of that family is using her musical talent to make a name for herself.

Joyce Hand, daughter of former Mayor Charles W. Moerlein, began her musical career at the age of six when she started playing the piano. Since then she has learned to play several other instruments, including the guitar.

"I'VE LOVED MUSIC from the day I was born," she said.

Her family as well was deeply involved in music. Her mother played the organ and her brother sang opera, she said.

"The music's always been in the family," she said. "It's still there." EVEN HEAT father, who was mayor from 1945 to 1949, was musically inclined, she said, though maybe not as play as the others. "He used to play the harmonica and whistle the 'Missouri Waltz,'" Hand said.

Through her family, her early exposure to music would be the start many years later of a musical career for Hand.

IT WAS on April 15, 1982, when she made her first public appearance, performing with a band at Bill Burns—now Jerry's—Cafeteria, she said. Less than a year later, she played her first solo at the Troy Opry Music Barn.

In 1984, Hand received a score of 100 from three judges at the Wood County Show when she sang "Johnny Be Good."

She now has her own band called the "Rock-A-Billies." The band performs several types of music, including waltzes, polkas, country, and western, and rock.

BESIDES PERFORMING, Hand covers music as well. Several of her songs have been recorded and published.

One song, "A Tiny Teardrop," was recorded by country singer Dottie Frost for Chapel Recording Co. of Wollaston, Mass. That recording was sent to England, Hand said.

Her singing and composing reflect her life's experiences.

"I WRITE from the heart and that's how I sing my country," she said.

Recently, John Capp, a Nashville talent scout and former disc jockey at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel, contacted Hand by phone wanting her to record a master tape in Nashville, she said.

Hand, 48, said Capp laughed when she told him her age.

"WOW, WE better get started fast on you. You don't look that old," Capp said.

Her music has played a big part in her life since her simple beginning as a child playing the piano.

"Music's all I got," she said. "If you got a talent, it comes naturally."

Meeting on ordinance Tuesday

A PUBLIC MEETING concerning the proposed occupancy ordinance in Granite City will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 30, in the second-floor courtroom of the City Hall, 2000 Edison Ave. The ordinance would require a permit to be issued before a dwelling can be occupied and utility service turned on. The council is expected to act on the ordinance at its Oct. 7 meeting.

25 years ago

Monday, Sept. 25, 1961

The sparkling play of an unheralded defensive halfback, Vic Buehler, sparked Granite City to a come-from-behind 21-13 victory over Madison here Friday night as the Warriors claimed the mythical inter-city football championship for the second straight year. Buehler is a 170-pound senior.

City proud at 90

On Sunday, Sept. 28, the people of Granite City are cordially invited to participate in the ceremonies marking the rededication of City Hall.

The Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society is proud to sponsor this event as a gift to the city in its 90th anniversary of its incorporation. We look forward with pride and eager anticipation to the centennial celebration to come, and have chosen this date to begin our program of designating and establishing Granite City landmarks.

In the years to come, we will continue our efforts to identify, mark and publicize buildings, homes or sites which are particularly associated with events or the lives of significant citizens in municipal history.

We mark this inaugural with the donation to the city of a silver plaque marking the site of Granite City's second City Hall, the present Civil Defense building at 19th St.

Areas distinguished for their architecture, artistic value or representation of master craftsmanship will likewise be identified and listed. It is a project worth the support and encouragement of all citizens, as we share and take pride in our common past.

We have chosen to focus on City Hall with purpose and forethought. It stands as a tangible symbol of the city itself.

It is where the decisions of elected officials are formulated, where the power of government is exercised, and where, indeed, democracy operates in its fullest degree.

The renovation of City Hall is yet another chapter in a long and proud civic history.

As an organization committed to the restoration and rehabilitation of historic properties, we applaud the city's efforts in this endeavor. Our purpose is to encourage pride in the city of Granite City, pride in its past triumphs and hope for the future.

The link to the past is visibly demonstrated in our special guest of honor, Alberta Rousseau, the only child of former Mayor Marshall E. Kirkpatrick, the driving force behind the construction of the present City Hall. We welcome Mrs. Rousseau and honor the memory of her father with a biographical sketch in the brochure distributed today at the rededication event.

Granite City's first mayor, James McRoberts, and our current chief executive, Von Dee Cruse, will also be featured in the brochure, together with a brief history of Granite City and its three city halls. All residents are invited to the rededication ceremony at 2 and 4 p.m. in the second-floor courtroom at City Hall. The newly remodeled Third Circuit Court Associate Division courtroom on the main floor will also be open for public viewing.

A slide show will feature a history of Granite City and will be presented at 2 and 4 p.m. in the second-floor courtroom at City Hall. The newly remodeled Third Circuit Court Associate Division courtroom on the main floor will also be open for public viewing.

The agenda calls for the events to begin at 1 p.m. with presentation of the plaque and a formal rededication by Mayor Cruse.

The Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society believes that the keys to growth and prosperity can be found in reverence and respect for things past. We encourage our fellow citizens to examine our common heritage of accomplishments, therein to find a source of inspiration and optimism for the future.

We take pride in playing a role in the realization of our home town. It is truly an endeavor that requires total public involvement for success. We invite one and all to participate.

Listen to telephone over television

WASHINGTON — You've seen the television commercial: one harried businessman stuck in traffic, fuming because he's out of touch with the office, another businessman coolly calling the office and closing the deal on his cellular telephone.

What the ads don't say is that anyone who is tired of game shows and soaps can overhear cellular phone transmissions from passing cars simply by tuning to channels 80 to 83 and adjusting the antenna. The phones use FM frequencies, which overlap UHF television bands.

If the car is moving right along, a listener may be able to overhear only a minute or two of a conversation, if there's a traffic jam, whole conversations can be picked up.

The cellular phone industry doesn't like to admit how easily their products' presumed privacy can be penetrated. Our reporter Courtney Brinkherhoff was assured by one AT&T salesman that it's impossible to tap into a cellular chat. Another, after being told how easy it was, suggested that the monitored phones must have been installed improperly.

And a Bell Atlantic salesman, who admitted monitoring is possible, insisted that "a $10,000 scanner is almost essential."

In a determined attempt to deny reality, industry lobbyists have succeeded in convincing the House that cellular phone conversations can be made private and that the Justice Department should crack down on eavesdroppers. The House has passed the Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986 and it's up before the Senate now.

Why bother with a law that will be clearly unenforceable without instituting a "Soviet-style police state"? "There will be the illusion that these (conversations) will be private," explained Benn Kobb, editor of Personal Communications Technology, adding, "They are not. They are being broadcast FM across the city."

The cellular phone industry evidently hopes that a congressionally mandated crackdown on eavesdropping will boost the image — and the sales — of an expensive device that actually has all the privacy of an office intercom with the switch left on.

The law "will discourage an attitude that eavesdropping is an acceptable pastime, according to industry lobbyist Barbara Phillips. For their part, Justice Department officials said they're not planning any big crackdown if the bill becomes law. If they did, commented Rep. Mike DeWine, R-Ohio, "I think we would all question their sanity."

Even this did not discourage a congressional aide who favors the legislation. "There are often bills passed that the Justice Department does not enforce," the aide said. "They use them as a message."

MANGO POLITICS: At the State Department's request, the Environmental Protection Agency has relaxed its ban on imported mangoes treated with the insecticide EDB, a known carcinogen. Mexican and Cuban growers will now have an additional 12 months to find a less dangerous insecticide.

Nature paints bright hues

To the editor: Have you ever stopped to admire the bright colors of autumn leaves? If the robin is the harbinger of spring, then certainly the turning leaves serve as a symbol of fall. Have you ever wondered how they change color?

Each year at this time the shortening periods of daylight, combined with longer nights, prompt the mysterious process of abscission, which causes leaves and fruit to drop.

A thin layer of cells forms at the joint where the leaf joins the stem and eventually blocks the flow of moisture, nutrients and photosynthesis (the stuff that leaves make) both in and out of the leaf.

When circulation within the leaf decreases, chlorophyll, which makes the leaves appear green, is no longer produced.

Reductions of chlorophyll allow other colors in the leaf to be seen. These are usually light yellow, brown and other subdued colors. Fall's brightest colors are created when a period of sunny days follows the formation of the abscission layer. Sugars and other substances produced through photosynthesis become trapped inside the leaf. Sunlight then enhances them to produce the bright orange, crimson and gold hues we all enjoy.

Some tree species known to produce the brightest colors are sugar maple, red maple, red oak, sweetgum and sassafras.

The height in fall coloration for our area is early to mid-October.

Some differences illogical

To the editor: As a taxpaying resident of the state of Illinois and an employee of SIUE, I found some information that I thought your readers would be interested in knowing.

The governor of Illinois in 1986-87 will make $88,825. SIU Chancellor Lawrence Pettit (new to the job) will receive this year's salary that is $15,175 above what Gov. Thompson will make.

Why is this? Does a chancellor of a university system (approximately 33,743 students) have more responsibilities, duties, etc. than a governor of a state (approximately 11,427,409 population)? I have my doubts.

Also, civil service employees at SIUE make 28-37 percent less than state of Illinois employees in comparable positions.

I am a college graduate and have been employed at the university for 10 years. After three promotions my salary is only $251 above the allowable limit for food stamps.

Book-banning rises in pages of history

Book Banning — It was done by Hitler, by English royalty at the height of the English empire and by many governments who find some ideas and descriptions in books and other publications so threatening as to outlaw them.

Books are sometimes banned in our own country. Last week was National Banned Book Week, a week set aside to ponder book-banning.

Many times books are quickly taken from the shelves of our schools and public libraries. The heat felt from some sectors of our hellfire society is so intense that library and school boards sometimes find it easier to ban than fight. But, some boards stand firm against objections to the written word.

The book-banning issue is not as black and white as the words and pages of a book.

Sometimes the goals of those wanting to censor bookshelves go far beyond the removal of individual titles. Book-banners often attack whole ideas that differ from their own.

Last year, the organization People For The American Way, a group that monitors censorship cases, documented 130 banning incidents in 44 states. The figure represents a 117 percent increase in censorship activity from their listings last year.

Among some of the cases were: In Florence, S.C., a parent wanted the school board to remove the Marian Webster College Dictionary from the Florence High School library because of the definition of certain words. The school board voted to remove the dictionaries.

At the South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Massachusetts, the superintendent objected to and removed the anonymously written book Go Ask Alice for "profanity" and "fairly explicit descriptions of experiences as a prostitute." A school committee voted 4-3 to uphold the ban.

In Hillsboro, Mo., parents backed by Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum objected to John Steinbeck's Of Mice and Men for "objectionable words," to the film version of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet and to Shel Silverstein's A Light in the Attic due to "perverted pictures," and "no redeeming value." A school complaint committee recommended keeping the books. The school board voted to order classroom alternatives to the books and allowed only an edited version of the movie to be shown.

Books dealing with sex education and the supernatural were particularly vulnerable to objections from parents and private organizations.

The list goes on with religious, political, environmental, moral and racial objections to hundreds of books, magazines, films, records and student newspapers.

The objections come, not only from fundamentalist Christian groups, but also from self-described liberal social scientists.

To be sure, there are some publications that grade-schoolers would not understand and could be potentially confusing and harmful. These are few, and would probably mean nothing academically to the student.

But the banning of information, of political or social ideas and ideals or portrayal of life as it is for some of us or all of us, is censorship. Censorship is also harmful.

This nation cannot afford successful attacks on school curriculums and reading materials. The U.S. already lags behind other industrial nations in reading and writing proficiency. Sterile textbooks and books with no reflections of our society will "dumb-down" students. And they will be the worse for it.

One of my favorite books is by a South American author I thought was little known in this country, Gabriel Garcia Marquez. One of his books One Hundred Years of Solitude is a best-seller, widely read in the Wasco High School in California.

I think I'll blow the dust off it, re-read it and may I wrap it in a brown paper bag to a Wasco High School student.

Members of Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum and some Christian fundamentalist groups objected to dozens of books concerning business, careers, driver education, foreign language and music that were up for adoption by the state's textbook committee. The books were objected to because they did not meet certain "religious and social philosophies." The state Board of Education eventually rejected 37 of the books.

The list goes on with religious, political, environmental, moral and racial objections to hundreds of books, magazines, films, records and student newspapers.

The objections come, not only from fundamentalist Christian groups, but also from self-described liberal social scientists.

One youngster, Joni, after reviewing the police news section on DUI reports, wrote: "After a person reads these reports, he will think twice about getting behind the wheel of an automobile after having a little too much alcohol in his blood stream."

Another youth, Kyle, wrote: "The people who because paper know the 'truth' this paper gives a personal touch."

Adam stated: "The want ads are important to the unemployed and they provide a service to the company by finding employees."

Joyce wrote: "I really think that we would be lost without our local press."

Four men charged after cocaine found

COLLINSVILLE — Four men have been charged after police allegedly found cocaine in the apartment of one of the men.

Jeffery Clark, 26, of Granite City, Anthony Clark, 20, of Pontoon Beach, and Donald Clark, 22, and Joseph Petty, 28, both of Collinsville, were charged by the Madison County state's attorney's office Monday, Sept. 22, with possession of a controlled substance, a Class 4 felony.

The four men were arrested Friday, Sept. 19, in Petty's apartment, where authorities said they found cocaine.

The men were arraigned Tuesday before Associate Judge Wendell Durr of Granite City at the Madison County satellite court in Collinsville.

Donald Clark, Anthony Clark and Petty were taken to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville, where they remain. Jeffery Clark was released after posting $1,500 bail.

Each man could face up to three years in prison if convicted.

IP gives $1 million to coal-to-gas plant

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Power Company was given approval by the Illinois Commerce Commission last week to contribute another $1.1 million toward the operating cost of the KibGas coal-gasification plant, in East Alton.

It will bring the total investment of Illinois Power in KibGas to $10 million.

The new funding will be paid in installments toward 1987 toward the cost of the RAM (Reliable, Affordable and Maintainable) II phase of the demonstration plant.

RAM II is slated to start in mid-October and continue through the end of the year. RAM II is scheduled for 1987.

The earlier RAM I testing phase was completed in April and further slight modifications and analysis of data to prepare for the next phase have been under way since then.

Some members of the testing expressed concern that the testing period for the KibGas plant had gone on long enough as far as justifying further utility company investment.

Illinois Power spokesman Al Adams said, however, the firm has plans to invest any further in the KibGas plant beyond the amount just approved.

Allis-Chalmers has only announced testing phases through RAM II, said spokesman Dennis Thisted Sept. 19.

The total cost of Ram II is $18.8 million, according to Allis-Chalmers. This includes contributions from Allis-Chalmers itself, Illinois Power and six other utilities.

Tax pledge by Gaffner

Americans for Tax Reform has announced that Bob Gaffner, a candidate for the U.S. House from Illinois's 21st Congressional District, took the "tax reform pledge."

By taking the pledge, Gaffner promised that, if elected, he will oppose any attempt to raise individual or corporate tax rates above the 15-28.34 percent levels in the Tax Reform Act of 1986. He also promises to fight any elimination or reduction in deductions and credits unless matched by dollar-for-dollar further lowering rates.

Grover Norquist, executive director of Americans for Tax Reform, praised Gaffner and urged all of Illinois's congressional candidates to follow suit. He said, "Courageous candidates like him will ensure that today's tax reform does not become tomorrow's tax increase."

Jackson not in Quad City

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Local authorities have been deluged with reports that fugitive Michael Wayne Jackson was seen in the Granite City area.

However, all the sightings have been unfounded, said Police Chief Bill Harris.

"WE HAVE NO confirmed reports on Michael Jackson being in Granite City," he said.

On Thursday, the Granite City Police Department received numerous calls from people thinking they saw Jackson in the city, Harris said.

"He wasn't in Granite," Harris said. "I don't know how it got started."

ONE PERSON reported Thursday morning seeing a man, resembling Jackson, hitchhiking northbound at 27th Street and Madison Avenue, said the morning watch commander.

"I sent 16 cars but we only had three," the commander said.

Officers investigated at the scene, but discovered the report to be unfounded, he said.

A REPORT by Madison County authorities said Jackson was believed to be hitchhiking Thursday morning at Interstate 270 and Illinois 203.

That report also was false.

Authorities believe Jackson, 41, is in the Wright City, Mo., area. He allegedly killed his parole officer and a store clerk in Indianapolis on Monday.

Police also believe Jackson shot and killed an O'Fallon, Mo. man Monday evening. Jackson also allegedly shot a Wright City police officer.

Committee backs Wolf in election

The Illinois Federation for Right to Life Political Action Committee (IFRL-PAC) has announced its endorsement of Sam Wolf for reelection to the Illinois legislature.

Rep. Wolf is a Granite City Democrat.

"The right to life is the foundation, on which all other rights must be built," said Cleta Jasper, chairman of the PAC. "Without this right, all other rights are meaningless."

Not only has Mr. Wolf expressed his support of a human life constitutional amendment, but he also has actively supported the right to life in the legislature.

The committee is a PAC conceived with Illinois Federation for Right to Life Inc., which represents Illinois on the board of the National Right to Life Committee in Washington, D.C.

The state board is comprised of representatives of the right to life movement from throughout Illinois, Jasper said.

$25 million plan to attack Illinois drug abuse

Illinois has unveiled plans for a $25 million comprehensive program to attack drug abuse, including doubling funding for drug education programs in schools.

Also announced are an intensified campaign to pass a constitutional amendment Nov. 3 allowing judges to deny bail in certain cases, and a call for imposition of the death penalty in drug conspiracy cases resulting in death.

Gov. George H. Ryan will coordinate efforts to curb a "near-epidemic proliferation of drugs among children."

"We have made significant progress in making Illinois a safer place to live, but we must now step up education efforts in schools, and emphasize legislative initiatives in the General Assembly and law enforcement on city streets and in rural areas," Ryan said.

"We must meet the rising threat to the health and safety of our youth. It is clear this will mean a union of police, educators, parents, social service agencies and concerned citizens."

"President Reagan has called for a national crusade on illegal drugs and abuse. It is a crusade in which I wholeheartedly believe. It is a fight the people of Illinois must win in our schools," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

"The President's program is working its way through Congress now, but years of work on Illinois drug abuse treatment and prevention programs have given us a jump on other states that also will be in line for federal funds."

"We expect to receive $25 million in federal funding to implement our program. Our plan is in place. We are ready to move."

"And regardless of whether federal dollars become available, we are committed to doubling the funding for drug education programs in our schools."

"Jim, I am sure you will recognize many of your ideas among the specifics of my national initiative," said the President in a telegram to Thompson.

"Your community-based prevention program and your efforts to achieve drug-free schools at all levels, for example, are elements we both agree will help keep illegal drugs away from their users."

The state's drug enforcement efforts already have been consolidated into one executive department, the Illinois State Police, with Metropolitan Enforcement Groups (MEGs) and task forces conducting local enforcement operations.

Operation Cash Crop, involving a cooperative effort among state, federal and local governments, has reduced the availability of domestically grown marijuana.

Operation Vakyrie, a highway and airport drug interdiction program, also uses state and federal enforcement agencies.

"In the long run," Thompson said, "our most effective weapon will be education. We must change attitudes and perceptions about drug use and the real dangers of abuse. But drugs will be a fact of life in our schools until ignorance of them is challenged and overcome with education."

"Lt. Gov. Ryan's program, S.T.O.P. (Sports Teams Organized for the Prevention of Substance Abuse), is an excellent example of capturing the attention of children by bringing athletes into schools to serve as role models and talk about the dangers of drugs."

The state administration created the Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (DASA) in 1984, consolidating programs of the Division of Alcoholism, Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities, and Dangerous Drugs Commission.

One of the department's programs, In Touch, has doubled the amount of funding targeted for drug prevention programs, spending $4 million in fiscal 1986 and 1987.

The program was designed to develop and deliver a curriculum to train teachers on drug prevention techniques.

It also brings together members of the community in meetings and programs to shape attitudes on drug abuse prevention and to recognize that prevention is a community responsibility. In Touch was designed jointly by the department, the State Board of Education and Ryan.

The new program will have four major components, including enforcement, prevention, legislation and passage of the proposed constitutional amendment on denial of bail to dangerous accused felons.

New enforcement tools to enhance current efforts are to include:

- A free exchange of drug investigation information on drug dealers and users between State and local law enforcement agencies. The statewide Law Enforcement Agencies Data System (LEADS) computer system will give local police agencies access to the massive state informational network.

- Use of the LEADS system to provide information on dope houses, which are the most common distribution point for "crack," and use of LEADS for information on gangs who exploit our youth, both as sellers and users.

- A request for federal authorities to provide State access to registration on privately owned airplanes to further assist in the identification of drug traffickers.

- Expand the resources of the Illinois State Police force's special drug task forces, Metropolitan Enforcement Groups (MEGs) and canine units.

- Develop a special unit within the Illinois State Police to attack in-trial conspiracy and asset-forfeiture cases.

- Develop a witness relocation and protection program patterned after the federal model.

- Begin collecting latent fingerprints from illicit drug packaging paraphernalia and from the scenes of drug crimes so they will be on file with the State Police when the Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS) becomes operational in the fall of 1987.

- Expand use of National Guard resources, such as helicopters, to assist in Illinois drug enforcement efforts, particularly in the identification and eradication of marijuana fields.

- Use of the LEADS system to trace serial numbers so the State Police can follow money trails in drug deals.

Prevention and education efforts will be stepped up through the cooperative efforts of the Illinois State Police, the Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse, and the State Board of Education, which will develop an educational program aimed at changing attitudes about use of controlled substances.

To accomplish that goal, programs will intensify use of state and local uniformed police officers for classroom instruction.

Drug education will be targeted at children in elementary schools, where peer pressure is less intense. Emphasis will be placed on the consequences of substance use, decision-making skills, self-esteem, interpersonal communication skills and positive alternatives to drug use.

The Illinois State Police Six Point Drug Abuse Prevention Program and the Los Angeles Police Department's Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program will serve as models. Efforts will include:

1. The State Police and the State Board of Education will work together to develop a standard curriculum on drug education for elementary school children.

2. Federal, state and private funding will be sought to pay for local law enforcement training and public awareness programs.

3. The State Police, DASA and the Board of Education will coordinate efforts to increase public awareness. News media, private enterprise and organized labor will be asked to support public education efforts.

4. The State Police will coordinate a speaker's bureau which will be available to address concerned citizens and community groups on issues related to substance abuse.

The governor said the administration's drug program already has bipartisan support. Members of the General Assembly who have agreed to sponsor needed legislation include Senate Minority Leader Pate Philip of Elmhurst and Senators Adeline Geo-Karis of Zion, Greg Zito of Melrose Park and Walter Dudycz and Ted Lechowicz, both of Chicago. In the House, sponsors include Thomas McCracken of Downers Grove, Robert Churchill of Lake Villa, Linda Williamson of Northbrook and Alfred Rogan, Bill Laurino and Joseph Berrios, all of Chicago. Legislation that will be proposed includes:

- A mandated death penalty for any person who intentionally causes the death of another person while engaged in directing or financing the sale or distribution of Class X amounts of drugs.
- Mandatory jail sentence of at

Relax! AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 3 - Real estate transactions, whether you're on the buying or selling end, move toward exceptional profit this week. Feb. 4-Feb. 18 - You should receive a better return on financial investments than expected. Spend or reinvest wisely. PISCES Feb. 19-March 5 - Domestic or business partner adds just the dash of spice needed to make a routine week something special. March 6-March 20 - You have an energizing influence on all you meet this week. But don't let it become aggression. ARIES March 21-April 4 - You suddenly become eligible for entry into circles that have been denied you in the past. A good week! April 5-April 19 - An inclination toward romanticizing may keep you from being realistic.

Even so, you make gains this week. TAURUS April 20-May 5 - An increase in vitality gives you the ambition you need for progress and the determination to achieve it. June 7-June 20 - A rose by any other name would smell as sweet. Difficulties stem purely from choice of words.

Treatment funding called vital to curb drug abuse

Top officials of Illinois' leading drug and alcohol abuse treatment organization this week said a detailed analysis of new state and federal programs shows government has placed "an encouraging and unprecedented focus" on the issue.

But for the effort to be completely balanced, it must include meaningful funding for anti-drug treatment, they said.

"The unprecedented attention is welcome, because this has been a long and lonely fight, but we need to recognize that treatment services must be dramatically expanded," said James Long, executive director of the Illinois Alcoholism and Drug Dependence Association (IADDA).

Long and other IADDA officials outlined a three-point campaign during a Chicago news conference. The proposal calls for:

- Immediate expansion of drug and alcohol treatment facilities.
- Creation of model programs to identify drug and alcohol problems and to provide treatment for state workers and those employed in the private sector.
- Reviewing recent state budget cuts to determine if funds are available to make restorations to relieve drug and alcohol treatment caseload backlogs.

"We have opened discussions with state and federal officials to address these questions. Today, we hope to reach out to the public so that Illinois can be at the forefront of this new national initiative," Long said.

"Without these immediate steps, we are creating the very real possibility that the hopes of parents searching for help for their children of young people grappling to kick a habit and of workers seeking treatment will be dashed."

"The new anti-drug education programs are welcome, and increased law enforcement strategies are worthwhile. But what about the kids who are not in school and those who want to stop before an arrest occurs?" said C. Vincent Bakeman, president of Human Resources Development Institute.

"We know that every time we hear of new drug testing programs, there will be hundreds of people who will voluntarily seek help. They must be helped," Bakeman added.

"Saying 'no' to drugs for someone with a problem only works if there is someone out there to respond to the plea," said Long.

"Some experts estimate Illinois is losing more than $7 billion annually through crime and worker inefficiency due to drug abuse. That amount is equal to nearly 35 percent of total state spending."

"The sheer magnitude of the problem requires we do more."

Joining Long and Bakeman at the news conference were Bill Southwick, executive director of the Northwest Youth Outreach Inc.; Greg Zyvert, executive director of the Southeast Community Health Organization; New Hane, of the South Suburban Council on Alcoholism; Eldoris Mason, executive director of Brass Inc.; and Margaret Kelly of Lutheran Social Services.

Long said persons interested in joining in the IADDA campaign may call its toll-free hotline, 1-800-252-6301.

IADDA is a statewide association of nearly 100 treatment providers, groups and 1,000 individual members. It sponsors a number of programs, including the nationally recognized Illinois Teenage Institute on Substance Abuse.

There is a whole spectrum of things we are going to have to consider.

"We budgeted a certain amount of money for repairs but nothing of this magnitude," Kessel said.

Closing the rink is not an option, Kessel said.

"We aren't even considering not opening the rink at all. We will do everything possible to keep it open," he said.

The Park Board's Finance Committee is expected to discuss the rink situation and other budget matters at a meeting on Tuesday.

Firemen plan open house

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — In celebration of Fire Prevention Week, Monday-Friday, Oct. 6-10, the Granite City Fire Department will host an open house each day at its three facilities.

The public is invited from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. to visit any one of the three stations located at 2300 Madison Ave., 2700 Rock Road and 2231 Richmond Ave., said Assistant Fire Chief Walmer Schmidt.

Firefighters will also be selling smoke detectors for $6 each while supplies last, he said. The smoke detectors were purchased in cooperation with Firefighters' Local 233.

evaporator breaks down.

Though nothing will be done about the evaporator this year, Kessel said the district will have to decide soon how to resolve the equipment problem for next year.

HE SAID A NEW evaporator will cost about $20,000, which would be an unexpected, major expenditure for the district.

"We budgeted a certain amount of money for repairs but nothing of this magnitude," Kessel said.

Closing the rink is not an option, Kessel said.

Free installation of the smoke detectors will be available by appointment to handicapped and elderly residents, said Fire Chief Joe Holder.

A pamphlet will be included, outlining particular areas of the home where smoke detectors are needed.

According to information from the National Fire Safety Council, people usually die in fires because they are not warned in time to escape deadly smoke, heat and toxic fumes. A smoke detector can warn of a fire in its earliest stage.

"No home should be without one," Schmidt said.

template," said Board President George Sykes.

Kessel said one option would be to replace both the evaporator and the compressor with another important but aging piece of ice-making equipment. Though the compressor is not now in disrepair, Kessel expects it will be replaced in the near future because of its age.

"If WE COULD replace the entire system, it would be worth our while," Kessel said.

The board will be gathering cost estimates in the coming weeks on how much a new ice-making system would cost.

The board is also considering buying new ice skates to replace older ones. Kessel estimated the cost of new skates to be $3,000. The board decided to take no action on the skates until the Finance Committee meets.

Kessel said the rink will be ready to be rented for group use and for hockey practice by the middle of October and will be open to the general public on Nov. 1.

automotive traffic and also the value of avoiding derailments of hazardous materials that could result in evacuations and possible injuries to the nearby residents.

of the child.

• Make bail criteria for known drug peddlers more restrictive.

• Provide a statutory basis for the "good faith" exception to the Exclusionary Rule, so that evidence of drug violations gathered in good faith by police, but which would be barred by the courts under current law, will not automatically be excluded from trials.

• In April, Thompson commended the State Senate on its approval of an amendment to permit judges to deny bail to accused felons posing a threat to the community. Having received a three-fourths majority of both chambers of the Assembly, the resolution will be on the ballot in November for voters approval.

The governor directed Ryan to organize a campaign to educate voters on the merits of the issue.

Under current constitutional provisions, judges may deny bail only when the offender has been charged with murder, treason or repeated Class X criminal offenses.

The amendment would, for the first time, permit judges to consider the safety of individuals and the community at large in determining whether to deny bail for the commission of a host of serious crimes.

"Studies in New York and Washington, D.C. show that drug users were 50 percent more likely than non-users to be re-arrested for additional crimes before reaching trial," Thompson said.

"We can deny bail to keep some of the most dangerous drug dealers and violent drug users in jail where they are not able to harm innocent men, women and children — if only we allow judges the discretion to do so."

That belief citizens will demand that protection once they understand the proposed constitutional amendment, I believe it is our obligation to bring the issue to public attention before voters go to the polls in November."

Koen sees party rift

EAST ST. LOUIS — The Rev. Charles H. Koen was in the city in summer to explain his position to officials and ministers.

Koen said his campaign for governor consisted mostly of responses to requests made by Solidarity candidate Adlai Stevenson, the former Democratic candidate for the post.

Koen said Stevenson's campaign was being financed by Gov. James Thompson.

Koen also promised that he would challenge petitions of the Illinois Independent Party regardless of the number of signatures, Koen said.

He said he asked Stevenson for supporting evidence of the charges and never got a response. Koen's party since has been ruled off the ballot.

"We did not want to create a fight with Stevenson, but I feel it was quiet because I, as a black, decided to run," Koen said.

"I always felt Stevenson was liberal and I supported him as a senator and gubernatorial candidate and yet I face this kind of attitude. I would expect that from a right-wing type person, but not Stevenson," he added.

Though he was asked to run by various farmers and coal miners who are black, Koen said, he first wanted to find out if Stevenson would accept some of the ideas of the Illinois Independent Party.

However, during a Chicago meeting, Stevenson allegedly told Koen he did not make deals and would not subscribe to any of the points.

The nine-point plan requested, among other things, that if elected Stevenson would:

- Award seven of the 22 state cabinet positions to blacks.
- Let farmers have the controlling hand in the Department of Agriculture.
- Give coal miners control of, or directorship in, the Department of Mines and Minerals.

The proposal suggested various positions similar to these in the departments of Public Aid, Insurance, Commerce and Community Affairs and Children, Family Services, and the Housing Development Authority.

Stevenson's attitude and the actions of other state Democrats will help widen a rift in the party, Koen said.

"I do not perceive that there isn't already a rift in the party," he said. "Our lives are not improving and neither is housing or economic development."

"Why I married to the Democratic Party when we're being treated this way?"

Cable sale discussed

By Donna Kimbro

Staff writer
MADISON — The anticipated sale of Southwestern Cable Co. and the effect on service to subscribers were discussed Tuesday night by the City Council.

No decision was made.

ALDERMEN MET with Floyd Rogers, director of government affairs for Cencom, Chesterfield, Mo., which has agreed to purchase Southwestern.

Rogers requested a transfer of the franchise from the present owner to Cencom and deposited a booklet with the city clerk giving detailed information on Cencom.

"During the past 18 months, the Cencom company has spent over $100 million in St. Louis County purchasing Group W, Storer and Amex assets and now is the major television operation in the county," Rogers said. "This will be our first Alderman William Gushleff asked if the rates would change with the new ownership.

ROGERS SAID he does not think there will be a rate change, since the new company does not plan to change the framework but just "step into the cable shoes."

New rates would be governed by what the market will allow, and the new organization will offer more services, including the Cardina

Alderman Don Garreft asked about specific programs and was assured there would be a black

A resolution to approve the ownership change will be presented to the council at the next meeting on Oct. 2.

Bridge at Lockport

Enjoys canal visit

By walking north over the Willow Springs Road Bridge in Willow Springs, Ill., I got a view of three waterways running parallel to each other.

They are the Illinois and Michigan Canal, which is no longer in use, the Sanitary and Ship Canal, which replaced the I-M Canal between Chicago and Joliet, and the Des Plaines River.

All three are part of the new Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor, which is far from the conventional national park.

When President Reagan signed legislation in 1984 making it the country's first "National Heritage Corridor," he dedicated an area 120-miles long running from Chicago's lakefront and LaSalle-Peru on the Illinois River.

The backbone of the corridor is the defunct Illinois and Michigan Canal, which was built from 1836 to 1848 and continued in use until the early 1900s.

The Heritage Corridor includes 18 Chicago neighborhoods, 43 other cities and towns, parts of eight state parks, 38 nature areas, 200 historic buildings and districts and many industries.

A commission has been set up to administer the Heritage Corridor. Lee Hanson, who has had 21 years in the National Park Service, recently was appointed executive director. Offices of the organization are in Joliet. The commission was set up to oversee many organizations already active in the area.

The Heritage Corridor was a combined effort of many local groups, two of which are the Friends of the I-M Canal National Heritage Corridor and the Upper Valley Association, a not-for-profit group of business leaders.

Following the federal legislation, Illinois created the Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor. The Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor, which includes representatives from the Cook County Suburbs along the canal.

Some of the goals of the authority are to preserve and renovate historic structures, establish and maintain recreational trails, and let people know of the historical, archaeological and geological resources of the area.

The whole project should also be good for business and give the local economy a boost through tourism. There is even a proposed "Summer Valley Festival," an outdoor entertainment complex that will be a sort of Ravinia South. One suggested building spot for it is near Archer Avenue (Route 171) and Route 83.

Several weeks ago the authority and representatives from Willow Springs kicked off interest in the Canal Corridor by having a parade and later ceremonies at the main intersection of Willow Springs to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the canal digging.

The parade, which began in Summit and ended in Willow Springs, included politicians, historic groups and representatives from the various communities.

Speakers, food, entertainment and a lot of information about the Corridor were furnished to a fairly large crowd.

The canal can be easily reached in many areas. The locations I visited were at Willow Springs, Morris and Lockport. I reached them from I-55 and Route 171. Besides other places, it is also accessible from I-80, and Route 6 runs parallel to it for quite a way.

In many areas no traces of the canal can be found because it has been filled in for other uses, and in some spots it has just dried up.

An example of what can be done in the Corridor is the Chicago Portage "Canoe Trail" on the Des Plaines River in the Cook County Forest Preserve District.

The 14.4-mile trail, which runs parallel to the I-M Canal, starts at Son's Ford near Lyons and ends at Lemont Landing. If you want to paddle further, you can go downstream to Ottawa.

A National Historic Site on the trail is the Chicago Portage, which was discovered in 1673 by Father Jacques Marquette and Louis Joliet as a connection between the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River.

The canoe trail also passes Palos Preserve, the Forest Preserve District's largest piece of land. Its hills and forests contain over 32 miles of trails.

Another example of what can be done historically and recreationally is that Lockport has developed a two-mile historic trail along the canal. Signs on the way help you interpret the history of the canal and Lockport.

Besides historic structures, one of which, the Gaylord Building, is now being restored, there is a view of the stone walls of what was once Lock 1, the first lock gates are gone, but the remains of the lock can be crossed by a foot bridge.

The trail, which can be reached at many places, is available to hikers, joggers, bicycle riders and cross-country skiers.

No matter how you look at it, the Heritage Corridor is a very long park in which to enjoy nature and history.

Adlai alleges report altered

The Fantus Company report released this month by the Thompson administration is "a watered-down version of the original that omits facts about Illinois' economic difficulties that would embarrass the governor," Adlai Stevenson said last week.

"It's not Watergate," Stevenson said. "It's just watered-down." "The release of this report follows a pattern. It contained embarrassing information, so it was suppressed, and released officially only after pressure from the outside to do so," Stevenson said.

"But the damaging information didn't all go away," Stevenson said. "There wasn't time to scrub clean the second report. Both Fantus I and Fantus II are indictments of Illinois' performance during the Thompson years."

During the first 1986 gubernatorial debate, Stevenson announced he would release a copy of the Fantus report that had been given to the governor last January. Following the debate, he distributed copies to reporters.

Later that afternoon, Jay Hedges, director of the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, released what he said was the "final" report to the media. The report, commissioned by DCCA, cost the state $111,000.

"The version released by DCCA is a sanitized version of the initial report," Stevenson said. "Many of the most damning statements about Illinois' economic condition had been deleted."

Stevenson, who has released two other reports he said the state tried to suppress, cited several statements from the first Fantus report that had been omitted in the second report, including:

• "Job creation within the state has not kept pace with that in the Midwest or the nation."

• "Illinois cannot simply blame its decline on having the wrong mix of industries ... Illinois actually has a superior mix of manufacturing industries for overall employment growth."

• Illinois' 1972-85, 26 percent job loss "is the worst record among competing Midwestern Great Lakes states."

• DCCA "files are limited because they have been maintained inconsistently."

• DCCA "grossly overrepresents corporate immigration versus out-migration."

"Throughout this campaign the governor has said that I didn't know what I was talking about," Stevenson said. "He has said I have misrepresented the condition of the state's economy."

"In the governor's paint-by-numbers kit there's a rosy picture of the state's economy. It isn't true and his own report proved it."

"He says more people are working than ever before. There should be more people. But Fantus II acknowledged that 'the number of Illinois jobs peaked in 1979.'"

"Illinois has all the economic fundamentals to be a leader," Stevenson said. "There is no reason Illinois has to lag almost all of the nation in economic growth. What Illinois needs is competent government."

"Jim Thompson has made leadership the issue in this campaign. I agree on this point. But what kind of leader suppresses information he doesn't like and tries to delude people into thinking the opposite is true?"

"Gov. Thompson is using tax-financed agencies to sanitize tax-financed reports and neutralize every piece of bad news," Stevenson said. "He has turned our government into an arm of his political campaign, charged with the task of manufacturing excuses and watering down damaging reports."

"He lacks the courage to tell people the truth, when the truth hurts. It is time to reverse the skewed priorities of this administration. It is time to get Illinois moving. Thompson has failed."

DREW KARANDJEFF

Q. Some years ago, I named my son executor of my estate. Since that time, he has moved out of state, and now lives at some distance. Do you foresee a problem in his remaining as executor, if he has no objections?

A. The real consideration here is the burden you may be placing on your son due to the distance involved. An executor does have a number of major responsibilities including inventorying your estate, paying bills and taxes, and making distributions from the estate following a final accounting. These must all be done at the location of the estate and sometimes, can be time consuming. Additionally, the costs of his travel would be charged against the estate. You may want to consider having your son remain as executor, but also naming a co-executor. The trust department at your bank will be happy to assist you in this move, as well as to give you information on trusts and estate management in general. Your attorney should, of course, be made aware of, and consulted in this action with your son and your banker.

Gaffner calls Price big spender

"Congressman Mel Price's big spending ways are part of his record that deserves debate," said Congressional candidate Bob Gaffner. "He's mortgaging our children's future."

Gaffner, challenging Price in the 21st Congressional District, has called for a series of debates to give voters the opportunity to compare the candidates' plans for the future. Price has refused to debate, saying voters know his views and that he would run on his past record.

Gaffner's comments were made after the release of a National Taxpayers Union (NTU) study that alleged Price is the biggest spender in the Illinois congressional delegation. According to the NTU study,

Price is one of the 15 biggest spenders in Congress, Gaffner said. "Our nation can no longer afford unchecked government spending," Gaffner said. "We are giving our children and grandchildren a burden of debt that threatens their economic future. This is one of the reasons it is important for us to debate. Voters should see for themselves who can best meet the challenges of the future."

Gaffner, a native of the 21st District, is an elected trustee of Kaskaskia Community College and a former member of the Greenville City Council. He is on leave of absence as director of community relations for St. Louis Community College.

Warriors scalp Kahoks

By Gregg Ochso

Executive Sports Editor
COLLINSVILLE—The afternoon belonged to Collinsville as the players reveled while their coach had his locks cut. The evening, however, belonged to Granite City.

The Warriors scalped the Kahoks 20-0 in the rain Friday night and grabbed a share of first place in the Southwestern Conference. With the victory, Granite City improved to 4-0.

Granite City now has won seven games in row and eight of its last nine over the last two years.

"Collinsville was a much better team than I had expected," said Granite City coach Ron Yates. "They played us tough."

For the third time in four games, the Warriors had the back after being tied at halftime.

"I told the kids it was gut-check time," Yates said. "If they wanted the game they had to suck it up."

For Collinsville, the loss was the team's first officially. The Kahoks, now 1-1 in SWC play, dropped an exhibition game to Mattoon on Sept. 19.

"We played them tough for one half, but then we kind of went to sleep out there," said Collinsville coach Bob Hollingshead, a former assistant coach at Granite City.

"I really thought this was my year to get Ronnie."

The victory for Granite, however, did not come without a price. Senior quarterback Tim Hogan suffered a first-degree shoulder separation late in the third quarter as he made a tackle on Collinsville's Wayne Hayden.

"We're going to get him a lot of treatment and hopefully it's not too bad where he can go next week," Yates said of the injury, which is to the left shoulder.

Collinsville, too, was bitten by the injury bug when defensive end Tom Gilliland limped off the field with a bad ankle. Gilliland, the area's leader in quarterback sacks, watched most of the game from the sidelines.

"That really hurt," Hollingshead said. "We needed to put a lot of pressure on their passing game."

Neither team did much passing in the first half. Much was played in a downpour. Both teams sloshed their way around on the field.

Granite City had the best scoring chance of the half. On their first possession, the Warriors drove to the Collinsville five yard line, but stalled and came away with no points.

Byerski free in the end zone, but it was ruled he was out of bounds when he caught the ball. Jim Parker then missed a field goal from 30 yards out.

"When the rains came in the second half I wished we had that field goal back," Yates said.

The rain actually worked in favor of the Kahoks who primarily kept the ball on the ground.

"I was hoping it would continue to rain because that would hurt their passing," Hollingshead said.

It rained in buckets, but the field conditions didn't seem to give either team an advantage. Collinsville managed to cross Warrior territory just one time in the first half.

As been their trademark this year, the Warriors came out in the second half like a new team.

The Warriors took possession of the second half kick off on their own 45-yard line and scored on just seven plays.

Runs by Len Whiteside and Terry Stanley moved the ball to the 37. Hogan then found Paul Satter for a 17 yard gain to the 20. Satter then took a hand-off and moved the ball to 11. On the second down, Stanley ran the ball to the five.

Hogan then broke the deadlock when he scored on a bootleg to the left with 8:46 left in the quarter. The PAT was off the left.

Granite City got a break when Parker recovered Kai Redmon's fumble on the ensuing kickoff. Six plays later, Todd Blaylock stopped the threat with an interception at the Granite City 20.

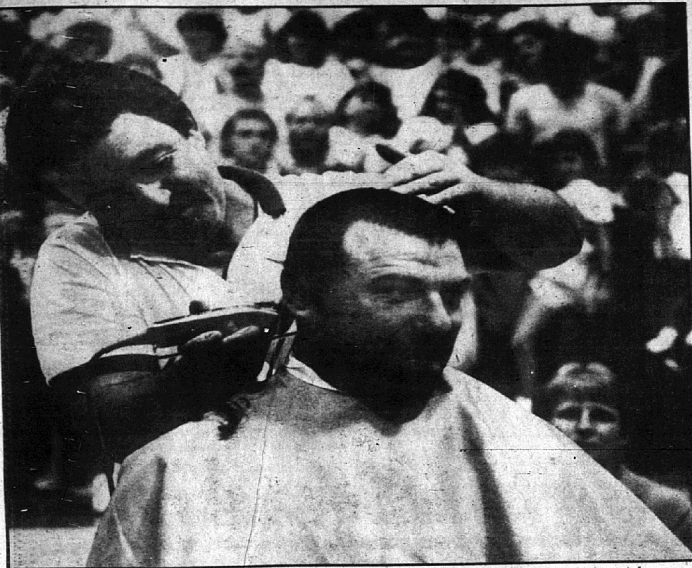

The Warriors defense stiffened as Blaylock gained just five yards on two carries. After an Hayden incomplection, the Warriors took over.

Granite City needed just one play to prove that its passing attack was not in hibernation as Tim Hogan found Jamie Hogan on a short, sideline pattern, Hogan then cut back inside for a 66-yard touchdown. The PAT was good and the Warriors led 13-0 with 3:23 left in the third quarter.

"We had some poor tackling on that play," Hollingshead said. "We missed about three different chances to get him."

The Kahoks stayed on the ground with Blaylock and Hayden.

Trojan defense consumes Cougars, as Madison breezes

By Gary King

MADISON—Standing in drenching clothes, with a wounded ego in the aftermath of his squad's defeat, Brees Central football coach Andy Kassebaum dug deep and scraped up the only optimistic statement he could find.

"I guess in a way we were lucky," said the Cougar coach. "It actually could've been much worse."

Wait just a second. What could possibly be worse than losing 39-2, and managing a measly 52 yards of total offense while generously, although not willingly, surrendering 230 or the same?

Well believe it or not, Kassebaum had a point. Even though Brees Central was unable to serve as anything more than a downstart for the Madison Trojans Friday evening, all things considered, it could've been even uglier.

After shutting down the Cougars on their first possession by failing three consecutive passing attempts, the Trojans took control on their own 27 yard-line.

Madison tailback Angelo Cross got the foot-wiping session underway on the first play from scrimmage, as he galloped 73 yards over right tackle Ted Kemp for the first score of the ballgame. Junior Lamonte Prothro then plunged two yards for the conversion, giving the Trojans an early 3-0 lead with 10:24 left in the initial quarter.

After another three pass and punt possession by Brees Central, the Trojans took over on their own 34 yardline with 8:51 remaining in the quarter. But after eating up over five minutes of the clock on 13 plays, Madison's drive stalled on the Cougar 30.

On the Trojan's ensuing possession, Cross appeared to have racked up his second long run of the evening when he sprinted 33 yards for an apparent touchdown; however, a clipping call on Gary Stanley negated the run. The drive later stalled on the Brees 25.

Madison linebacker Steve Bricker set up his team's second score of the contest when he picked off a Greg Ratermann pass on the Cougar 19 yard-line. Two plays later, Prothro sprinted 13 yards around the left end to paydirt. He then plowed up the middle for the conversion, putting Madison comfortably ahead, 16-0 with 7:15 left in the half.

After mustering only a yard on their next drive, the Cougars gave Madison the ball on the Trojan 47.

After a 25 yard run by Cross was once again called back due to a holding call, Madison quarterback Quincy Williams struck Prothro with a 43 yard pass, moving the ball to the Cougar one-yard line.

On the following play, Prothro plowed over, then added the conversion, giving the Trojans a 24-0 lead at the intermission.

After both squads had spent the better part of the third period battling a territorial downpour, Trojan cornerback Stephen Boyd gave his squad their final points of the contest when he picked off an errant Ratermann pass and returned it 40 yards for the touchdown with 10:47 remaining in the fourth quarter.

The Cougar's only points came when Cross was tackled in the Brees endzone after a Jeff Stricker punt had given Madison possession on their own two-yard line with 3:05 left in the game.

After the contest, a relieved Kassebaum disclosed that the loss didn't really come as a surprise.

"We knew we were in a bad situation coming into tonight," said the Cougar coach. "We had four two-way starters out for disciplinary reasons, and we just didn't have the speed to contend with them (Madison)."

"Once they got into the open field, they just ran away from us. We knew Cross was going to be tough coming in, and he certainly proved that here tonight. Madison's a good team, I think they'll be making some noise come playoff time."

According to Cross, who carried 19 times for 167 yards, the key to the Trojans success was the blocking of the line.

"They (the line) were blowing the holes wide open," said the senior tailback. "Like on that first play, the hole was huge. They just dominated Brees's defensive front all night long."

Although Trojan coach Don

GC triathlete competing in national championship

Sandy Schreiber of Granite City qualified to compete at the 1986 Bud Light U.S. Triathlon Series National Championship held yesterday at Hilton-Head Island, S.C.

Schreiber, the daughter of Paul and Barbara Schreiber, 3340 Palm St., Granite City, qualified for the championship after placing first in the 20-24 age group for women at the Bud Light U.S. Triathlon Series qualifying event held Aug. 3 in Chicago.

Her swim time was 22:25; her bicycling time was 1:06:47; and her running time was 43:14. Her total time was 2:16:46.

Triathlons are grueling tests involving a 1.5K swim (.9 miles), a 40K bike ride (24.8 miles) and a 10K run (6.2 miles), with hardly any time for rest in between. The course is extremely flat and fast.

The Bud Light U.S. National Championship is now in its fourth year. It is the most prestigious triathlon event in the country. Though more than 20,000 triathletes competed nationwide on the Bud Light U.S. circuit this summer, only 3,600 — 300 from each qualifying race — qualified to compete at the Hilton Head Island event, which is by invitation only.

The race serves as a double national championship. It is the culminating event of the 13-city Bud Light U.S. Triathlon Series.

Twenty athletes will be named national champions, one from each of the 20 age-group amateur divisions.

More than $55,000 in prize money is up for grabs, making the championship the richest short-distance triathlon in the sport.

The finals were to be televised in an hour-long special on ESPN.
